

Semiotica 2014, 198

Double Special Issue: Dimensions of zoosemiotics. Ed. Timo Maran

<http://www.degruyter.com/view/j/semi.2014.2014.issue-198/issue-files/semi.2014.2014.issue-198.xml>

The zoosemiotic issue of Semiotica gives an insight into the history of zoosemiotics and into contemporary developments of the field.... This special issue includes eleven articles on different zoosemiotic topics by authors of diverse backgrounds: from historical analysis of the discipline to ethical applications of animal semiotics, from contextualising zoosemiotics in biosemiotic groundwork to analysing representations of animals in human language.

Dimensions of zoosemiotics: Introduction

Contents

Maran, Timo. Dimensions of zoosemiotics: Introduction, 1-10

Hoffmeyer, Jesper. The semiome: From genetic to semiotic scaffolding, 11-31

Cobley, Paul. Codes and coding: Sebeok's zoosemiotics and the dismantling of the fixed-code fallacy, 33-45

Kull, Kalevi. Zoosemiotics is the study of animal forms of knowing, 47-60

Mandoki, Katya. Zoo-aesthetics: A natural step after Darwin, 61-91

Schmauks, Dagmar. Curs, crabs, and cranky cows: Ethological and linguistic aspects of animal-based insults, 93-120

Beever, Jonathan. On zoosemiotics and bridging the value gap, 121-135

Allen, Colin. Umwelt or Umwelten? How should shared representation be understood given such diversity?, 137-158

Tønnessen, Morten. Umwelt trajectories, 159-180

Magnus, Riin. Training guide dogs of the blind with the "phantom man" method: Historic background and semiotic footing, 181-204

Hribar, Alenka; Sonesson, Göran; Call, Josep. From sign to action: Studies in chimpanzee pictorial competence 205-240

Farina, Almo; Pieretti, Nadia; Malavasi, Rachele. Patterns and dynamics of (bird) soundscapes: A biosemiotic interpretation, 241-255